Discovering Your Primary Love Language:

Ask yourself—"What makes you feel most loved?" "What do you desire above all else in a relationship?" "What speaks to you emotionally?" "What have I most often requested of a certain person?"

Examine what you do or say to express love to someone you have a relationship with. Observe your own behavior.

I John 4:7-10

Home Group Discussion & BIBLE STUDY for this week:

- Do you take the time to encourage your friend/spouse? In what way or ways have your words of encouragement helped your spouse realize hidden or latent potential?
- What is the best way we can handle yesterday's failures? Why are words of affirmation a powerful means of restoring intimacy?
- Give examples of humble words. What do humble words communicate to people?
- What's the difference between "acts of service" and "acts of manipulation"?
- What makes receiving a gift so special? How does it become an expression of love between two people?
- Read I John 4:7-10. What are some of the connections between God and love? Do you struggle believing any part of this passage?
- Do you know for certain your primary love language? What might be your secondary language or languages? Dr. Chapman suggests spending time writing down what you think is your primary love language. Then, as you weigh them, list the other four languages in their order of importance.
